Dr. E. Cook Webb,

HASN'T REACHED THE "FIRST DECLENSION." Read through the plate glass of Beretania S Smith's store front. Then the horse went for Mr. Dimond's new and chaste family carriage, and injured it to a considerable extent, particularly about the paint work. There being no more vehicles in sight then the horse turned into Queen street, and then performed a remarkable feat (to quote the Hawaiian) "he turned Punchbowl street towards King street." Then, to quote the same authority, "Mr. Leroy tried to stop it here, but having no bridle on he could not do it," which shows the folly of people going about without first putting on their bridles. Finally, the horse found his way back to where he started from. The only serious damoge done to any one was the breaking of the leg of a little child who was playing on the dray, and was thrown off at the time the horse started to run.

Mrs. Hampson's Sunday Services.

The ground floor of Kawaiahao Church was packed, and the galleries were wellfilled yetserday morning. Perhaps 1,000 persons were in attendance. Pastor Gruzan led in prayer, and gave notice that gospel meetings would be held this week, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and some closing meetings the latter part of the

Mrs. Hampson chose as her text-Ps 27, 4: "One thing have I desired of the Lord, that I may dwell in the house of the Lord, etc." The secret of success in anything is concentration. The old adage, "the jack-at all-trades is good at none," is true. The same principle holds in spiritual things. The man who looks at all the spiritual graces, and longs for them all, sees patience in this one, faith in that, and diligence in another, and so on, and seeks to get them all at once, fails inevitably. Like other lessons, God's lessons must be learned one by one. It is "one thing," and by aiming at that for the time being, and nothing else, Henry Macfarlane, U. S. Consul McKinley, the moral young man came to him; he | the procession. lacked "one thing," and so went away sorrowful, one imperfect link in the chain renders the chain useless. The coffin, which was a very handsome one of polished koa wood with silver handles and trimmings, was covered with beautiful wreaths, crosses, and bequets of flowers, the tokens of affection from many friends. His fire-helmets CIII and plumed cap and A. T. was almost hidden beneath the floral offerings. A handsome silver plate bore the inscription : GEORGE H. FASSETT,

Died Jan. 10, 1885. Aged 39 years. The hearse, drawn by four white horses, driven by Mr. James Dodd, was drawn up opposite the front of the cottage, and the various organizations of which the deceased was a member were ranged on each side, the post of honor being occupied by Mystic | Lodge in full regalia, under whose auspices the ceremonies were conducted. A very large number of the friends of the deceased filled the veranda of the Hotel and the grounds about the cottage.

Pastor J. A. Cruzan read the Scriptural selections and prayers of the ritual of the Order of the Knights of Pythias, at the close of which the funeral procession formed in the following order, and proceeded to the Nuuanu Cemetery:
